US participation at Expo 2015 Milan

A barn with lightweight and comfortable structure, which invites visitors to embark on a journey into the world of food sustainability will be the concept of the Pavilion of the United States of America that the group "Friends of the U.S. Pavilion" has prepared for Expo Milano 2015. The project American Food 2.0: Sustainable, Innovative, Healthful, Entrepreneurial and Delicious was presented last November 13 at the headquarters of the company that organizes the Universal Exhibition.

The meeting, which was held in the presence of sole commissioner delegate of the Government for Expo Milano2015 Joseph Hall and the Ambassador of the United States of America in Italy SE John R. Phillips, was attended by the CEO of the International Culinary Center Dorothy Can Hamilton, Vice President of "The James Beard Foundation", Mitchell Davis and the Managing Director of the American Chamber of Commerce in Italy Simone Crolla, who are part of the group "Friends of the U.S. Pavilion Milan 2015".

On October 17, the President of the United States of America Barack Obama himself announced to the Italian Premier Enrico Letta, the name of the consortium of individuals who will develop the project and will manage the American Pavilion during the six months of the Universal Exhibition in Milan.

Diversity and responsibility are the pillars of presence of the United States of America in Expo Milano 2015. Elements that will be valued both in the technological equipment of the hall and through events, conferences and events that will enliven the exhibition space. The fundamental idea is that food is a universal language and that the future supply capacity depends on the political, diplomatic, social and technological innovation to creatively solve problems related to nutrition worldwide.
